APPRENTICE CASES AND BACKPACKS

SICHER SEIT 1827.

Reliable tools for starting out in the profession

Apprentices have special requirements when it comes to their first tool kit

Stepping out into a whole new world: when apprentices start their vocational training, they are faced with a myriad of new things to get their heads around. Having high-quality kit makes starting out in a career much easier – and in the electrical trade in particular, it is absolutely key for this kit to be safe, reliable and tested.

It is also important for tools to be well organised and ready to hand quickly without having to give it much thought. The product developers at CIMCO have created various solutions for this exact purpose. Those who like the smart yet sporty look will find the perfect match in the apprentice backpack. Alternatively, the apprentice case is a classic and robust option.

CIMCO apprentice cases and backpacks come with a choice of five different contents in total and offer the perfect kit for every field of work.

Backpack or case?

That is the question.

Looks are important too: this is what our portable first tool kits look like when they are closed and filled with tools. So apprentices will really look the part.

The tool case has become well established over the years. It represents a safe, protected way of transporting tools, which also offers plenty of space and storage options.

The tool backpack also provides an impressive amount of storage space and is a convenient and flexible alternative for travelling by bicycle, on foot or on public transport.
